Brian/Barb –

Just a head's up that local OPA/ERO in ATL received word that a few bus loads of "Occupy Atlanta" protestors will be taking their show on the road and heading down to Stewart for an "Occupy Stewart" demonstration at some point tomorrow.

Thanks!

"Any decisions on how to handle specific situations are dealt with by local authorities in that location. If a protest area is located on Federal property and has been deemed unsanitary or unsafe by the General Services Administration (GSA) or city officials, and they make a decision to evacuate participants, the Federal Protective Service (FPS) will work with those officials to develop a plan to ensure the security and safety of everyone involved."

ON BACKGROUND

- DHS is not actively coordinating with local law enforcement agencies and/or city governments concerning the evictions of Occupy encampments writ large.
- FPS only has jurisdiction when a protest takes place on federal property, and in some cases, shares that jurisdiction with local authorities.
- The GSA is the permitting authority for protests on federal property.
- FPS has only been involved in one instance in removing protestors, in Portland, OR. FPS was assisting the Portland Police Bureau at the federally-owned Terry Schunk Plaza where FPS arrested a handful of people

Hi there,

My name is Bigad Shaban and I am a correspondent with CBS News (national).

We'd like to request comment from the Department of Homeland Security concerning whether it, or any other federal agencies, offered any kind of assistance or advice to municipalities looking to dismantle their own Anti-Wallstreet "Occupy" protests.

Published reports note a relationship between the federal government and cities orchestrating the removal of "Occupy protestors" from makeshift camp sites.

AP: 5 protesters remain locked to barrel, each other at Occupy Portland

Portland, Ore. – Five protesters remain chained to each other and a 50-gallon drum filled with rocks and concrete at a downtown Portland plaza.

Police said late Saturday that two of the five Occupy Portland protesters are handcuffed to a piece of metal inside the barrel in Terry Schunk Plaza, which is federal property. At one point during the night, eleven people linked themselves together and to the men in handcuffs by using U-shaped bike locks. Five remained locked up midday Sunday.

Portland police spokesman Pete Simpson told The Oregonian on Sunday morning that the Federal Protective Services had decided to let the protesters occupy Schrunk Plaza, a federal park, for the time being.

KGW: 'Occupy' protesters chain up at Schrunk Plaza

PORTLAND - Some members of the "Occupy Portland" movement moved into Schrunk Plaza Saturday night and chained themselves to a barrel of cement.

So far, federal authorities haven't tried to force out the seven individuals.

They spent the night there with temperatures dipping into the mid 30's - and even set up a couple of tents.

The protesters said it was in direct response to arrests of "Occupy" protesters around the country.

Schrunk Plaza is policed by the Federal Protective Services.

Last Tuesday, officers they arrested 10 occupy protesters here.

Meanwhile, protesters calling themselves "the Real Occupy Portland" claimed responsibility for vandalism at two banks on Northeast Sandy Boulevard on Saturday.

They claimed that the methods used by the "Occupy Portland" general assembly were ineffective.

The Oregonian: Five protesters remain chained together at Terry Schrunk Plaza

After a cold night chained to a 50-gallon drum filled with concrete, five protesters remained bound together at Terry Schrunk Plaza Sunday morning after starting Saturday night with 11 linked together with bike locks.

"It wasn't cold," said Cameron Whitten, 20. "There were a lot of people here to make sure our needs were met. It felt amazing just to stay in this space and send a message of importance to the public."

Whitten said he saw federal law enforcement officers conferring with Portland police, but that only local officers chatted with the protesters and did "a few surveys."

All,

Apologies for interrupting your Sunday, but I've received a couple of calls from Portland media outlets about a group of 11 protesters who again set up camp at Terry Schunk Plaza in Portland last night. They have chained themselves to each other and to a large drum filled with concrete. GSA controls the permits and has asked FPS not to enforce the curfew at the park and the prohibition on overnight encampments. Reporters are asking if FPS will be arresting folks as they did last week. Portland PD is telling reporters it's FPS' decision (though the jurisdiction over the park is jointly shared by FPS, the City of Portland and the State of Oregon.)

I've spoken to the FPS CDR on the ground and he says they are standing down and following GSA's request to only intervene if there is a threat to public safety until they here otherwise from DHS.

Looping you in as this seems to be an operational question more than a comms question. Obviously, any decision on posture towards protesters setting up camp in federal parks will have ramifications for Occupy Portland and for protests in other cities. Please advise.

Thanks,
Chris

Here are a few stories. If we think how they're characterizing this is a problem, I can reach out to the Portland PD spokesperson and ask that he say this is a GSA decision. I have his contact.

AP: 5 protesters remain locked to barrel, each other at Occupy Portland

Portland, Ore. - Five protesters remain chained to each other and a 50-gallon drum filled with rocks and concrete at a downtown Portland plaza.

Police said late Saturday that two of the five Occupy Portland protesters are handcuffed to a piece of metal inside the barrel in Terry Schunk Plaza, which is federal property. At one point during the night, eleven people linked themselves together and to the men in handcuffs by using U-shaped bike locks. Five remained locked up midday Sunday.

Portland police spokesman Pete Simpson told The Oregonian on Sunday morning that the Federal Protective Services had decided to let the protesters occupy Schunk Plaza, a federal park, for the time being.

KGW: 'Occupy' protesters chain up at Schunk Plaza

PORTLAND - Some members of the "Occupy Portland" movement moved into Schunk Plaza Saturday night and chained themselves to a barrel of cement.

So far, federal authorities haven't tried to force out the seven individuals.

They spent the night there with temperatures dipping into the mid 30's - and even set up a couple of tents.

The protesters said it was in direct response to arrests of "Occupy" protesters around the country.

Schunk Plaza is policed by the Federal Protective Services.

Last Tuesday, officers they arrested 10 occupy protesters here.

Meanwhile, protesters calling themselves "the Real Occupy Portland" claimed responsibility for vandalism at two banks on Northeast Sandy Boulevard on Saturday.

They claimed that the methods used by the "Occupy Portland" general assembly were ineffective.

The Oregonian: Five protesters remain chained together at Terry Schunk Plaza

After a cold night chained to a 50-gallon drum filled with concrete, five protesters remained bound together at Terry Schunk Plaza Sunday morning after starting Saturday night with 11 linked together with bike locks.

"It wasn't cold," said Cameron Whitten, 20. "There were a lot of people here to make sure our needs were met. It felt amazing just to stay in this space and send a message of importance to the public."

Whitten said he saw federal law enforcement officers conferring with Portland police, but that only local officers chatted with the protesters and did "a few surveys."

Portland police spokesman Pete Simpson said Sunday morning that the Federal Protective Services had decided to let the protesters occupy Schunk Plaza, a federal park, for the time being.

All,

Apologies for interrupting your Sunday, but I've received a couple of calls from Portland media outlets about a group of 11 protesters who again set up camp at Terry Schrunk Plaza in Portland last night. They have chained themselves to each other and to a large drum filled with concrete. GSA controls the permits and has asked FPS not to enforce the curfew at the park and the prohibition on overnight encampments. Reporters are asking if FPS will be arresting folks as they did last week. Portland PD is telling reporters it's FPS' decision (though the jurisdiction over the park is jointly shared by FPS, the City of Portland and the State of Oregon.)

I've spoken to the FPS CDR on the ground and he says they are standing down and following GSA's request to only intervene if there is a threat to public safety until they here otherwise from DHS.

Looping you in as this seems to be an operational question more than a comms question. Obviously, any decision on posture towards protesters setting up camp in federal parks will have ramifications for Occupy Portland and for protests in other cities. Please advise.

Thanks,
Chris

AP: 5 protesters remain locked to barrel, each other at Occupy Portland

Portland, Ore. - Five protesters remain chained to each other and a 50-gallon drum filled with rocks and concrete at a downtown Portland plaza.

Police said late Saturday that two of the five Occupy Portland protesters are handcuffed to a piece of metal inside the barrel in Terry Schunk Plaza, which is federal property. At one point during the night, eleven people linked themselves together and to the men in handcuffs by using U-shaped bike locks. Five remained locked up midday Sunday.

Portland police spokesman Pete Simpson told The Oregonian on Sunday morning that the Federal Protective Services had decided to let the protesters occupy Schunk Plaza, a federal park, for the time being.

KGW: 'Occupy' protesters chain up at Schunk Plaza

PORTLAND - Some members of the "Occupy Portland" movement moved into Schunk Plaza Saturday night and chained themselves to a barrel of cement.

So far, federal authorities haven't tried to force out the seven individuals.

They spent the night there with temperatures dipping into the mid 30's - and even set up a couple of tents.

The protesters said it was in direct response to arrests of "Occupy" protesters around the country.

Schunk Plaza is policed by the Federal Protective Services.

Last Tuesday, officers they arrested 10 occupy protesters here.

Meanwhile, protesters calling themselves "the Real Occupy Portland" claimed responsibility for vandalism at two banks on Northeast Sandy Boulevard on Saturday.

They claimed that the methods used by the "Occupy Portland" general assembly were ineffective.

The Oregonian: Five protesters remain chained together at Terry Schrunk Plaza

After a cold night chained to a 50-gallon drum filled with concrete, five protesters remained bound together at Terry Schrunk Plaza Sunday morning after starting Saturday night with 11 linked together with bike locks.

"It wasn't cold," said Cameron Whitten, 20. "There were a lot of people here to make sure our needs were met. It felt amazing just to stay in this space and send a message of importance to the public."

Whitten said he saw federal law enforcement officers conferring with Portland police, but that only local officers chatted with the protesters and did "a few surveys."

Portland police spokesman Pete Simpson said Sunday morning that the Federal Protective Services had decided to let the protesters occupy Schrunk Plaza, a federal park, for the time being.

All,

Apologies for interrupting your Sunday, but I've received a couple of calls from Portland media outlets about a group of 11 protesters who again set up camp at Terry Schunk Plaza in Portland last night. They have chained themselves to each other and to a large drum filled with concrete. GSA controls the permits and has asked FPS not to enforce the curfew at the park and the prohibition on overnight encampments. Reporters are asking if FPS will be arresting folks as they did last week. Portland PD is telling reporters it's FPS' decision (though the jurisdiction over the park is jointly shared by FPS, the City of Portland and the State of Oregon.)

I've spoken to the FPS CDR on the ground and he says they are standing down and following GSA's request to only intervene if there is a threat to public safety until they here otherwise from DHS.

Looping you in as this seems to be an operational question more that a comms question. Obviously, any decision on posture towards protesters setting up camp in federal parks will have ramifications for Occupy Portland and for protests in other cities. Please advise.

Thanks,
Chris

FYI. Here is an updated statement, based on arrests made this morning while they cleared the park. Please let me know as soon as possible if there are any issues.

ON THE RECORD

"The Federal Protective Service (FPS) responded in coordination with the General Services Administration (GSA) and the Portland Police Bureau this morning to enforce the prohibition of overnight encampments at Schunk Plaza in Portland, Oregon. After repeatedly asking the campers to leave, FPS arrested ten individuals, who were cited for failure to follow the lawful order of a federal police offer, and subsequently released."

The Occupy Oregon movement has decided to camp out overnight in an FPS jurisdiction park. Turns out that's not allowed over night. We've been pinged by The Oregonian.

Below is what we plan to provide. Working now to coordinate with the City of Portland.

ON THE RECORD

“The Federal Protective Service (FPS) responded in coordination with the General Services Administration (GSA) and the Portland Police Bureau this morning to enforce the prohibition of overnight encampments at Schrunk Plaza in Portland, Oregon, while protecting the safety and security of all involved. Amy:

Unrelated to the reefer unit hazard you asked about, we are monitoring another issue in Oakland that could potentially impact port operations there.

Per the below, Oakland Police expects a large number of protesters to picket the Port of Oakland as early as 2000 EDT today. We have no indications at this early stage that this will disrupt operations (there are no shipments expected there this evening), but CG Sector San Francisco is monitoring the situation.

I anticipate CBP is also engaged and monitoring this issue and may have amplifying information.

~~UNCLAS-FOUO~~

UPDATE 1

SITUATION: Oakland Police Department (OPD) expects a large number of mostly peaceful protesters to picket the Port of Oakland prior to the start of tonight's 02 Nov night shift, starting as early as 1700 PDT.

ACTIONS TAKEN: CG employees at the Ronald V. Dellums Federal building in Oakland have been advised to telecommute when possible, in an attempt to avoid conflict with the General Strike demonstrators located outside the building. Base Support Unit Alameda has set up 30 workstations on CG Island for use by CG employees affected by the demonstration.

FUTURE PLANS: OPD and Alameda County Sheriff will have boats available for officer transport to the port if required, and Sector San Francisco is standing by to assist them with incidents. The impact to the port is expected to be minimal: no shipments are scheduled to enter port tonight.

WHSR, NORTHCOM, DOT and DHS/NOC SWO, ASWO and CG watch have been notified.

INITIAL

SITUATION: Open source media reports that the Occupy Wall Street movement intends to march in Oakland, CA today. Events are set to begin at 0900 PST and are expected to culminate with a march to the Port of Oakland, where local protesters say the goal is to stop work at the port before the 1900 PST evening shift.

FUTURE PLANS: NCC will continue to monitor the situation and provide updates.

WHSR, NORTHCOM, DOT and DHS/NOC SWO, ASWO and CG watch have been notified.

Subject: Port of Oakland

(b)(6), I'm not sure who's staffing S1 at the dinner, but we just heard from our San Francisco folks that 4000 people may be marching on the Port of Oakland at 7pm tonight.

Here's a link to a story about it:
<http://m.cnn.com/primary/8JS7co-iRhdoc8wZk>

I don't recall whether Oakland Port Police will be at the dinner tonight, but folks may ask her about how the Department is supporting/responding.

Likely OBE, but here are TPs from the USCG should there be any follow up q's:

*The protesters, while large in number - estimated at 4,500 - are predominantly peaceful; however, a small pocket of individuals damaged some property in the City of Oakland earlier today. The protesters are now moving towards the Port of Oakland on foot.

*The Coast Guard has been working in close coordination with the Oakland Police Department (PD) over the last 48 hours. Neither the CG nor Oakland PD expect waterside protests to occur.

*There may be a need for waterside access to accommodate facility staffing.
oThe Coast Guard will assist as necessary on the water.
o Approximately 50 local law enforcement and county emergency response agencies participate in and support the local Coast Guard led Neptune Coalition. All of these agencies are linked together through the Coast Guard Sector San Francisco Interagency Operations Center (IOC).

*The Port of Oakland was open for business today. Some ILWU port workers did not show up for work and therefore, cargo movements were slower than normal throughout the day.
oLabor gangs were ordered out this evening, but most of the container terminals closed due to anticipated street closures caused by Occupy protesters.

*There are Coast Guard personnel assigned to and embedded in the Port of Oakland's Emergency Operations Center 24/7 to assist the Port and liaison with the Coast Guard, and to monitor the security situation.
oCoast Guard personnel will remain on station until the Port fully reopens.

*Sector San Francisco has a ready 87' coastal patrol boat underway in San Francisco Bay, and several multi-mission small boat stations ready to respond if needed. Air Station San Francisco has a B-0 aircraft ready to respond as well.

*Coast Guard Sector San Francisco, District 11, and Pacific Area who are all located in the Bay Area, will continue to monitor Occupy protests throughout the evening and respond as needed.

All,

Here is the info from the CA Fusion Center via the NOC.

Probably not pertinent to tonight's NYC event, but worth noting internally that the protesters intent was to disrupt a mode of transportation hub.

Sir

Per our phone conversation, the following was received from the Fusion Rep in Northern, CA, reference Oakland Port protests.

~~(U//FOUO)~~ Coast Guard personnel at the Dellums federal building have already cleared out. Broadway in downtown Oakland was without traffic, and some police presence, four choppers overhead. Police have escorted protesters to the port of Oakland, including motorbike escort for 100-200 cyclists who passed in front of me at an intersection I just drove through in Oakland an hour ago.

~~(U//FOUO)~~ Per current press accounts on SFgate.com, dozens of trucks sat idling at the port while the protesters chanted "Empties go, cargo no." NCRIC's maritime representative advised that longshoremen had agreed not to cross protest lines. The timing of the protest to close the port was reportedly negotiated to limit impact on port operations.

~~(U//FOUO)~~ Other than a few smashed windows at a number of banks, today's events have remained First Amendment protected protest activities. NCRIC is not monitoring protected activity, but is in touch with the Oakland EOC in the event circumstances change. Alameda County has made a mutual aid request for 750 allied agency law enforcement officers

All,

Apologies for interrupting your Sunday, but I've received a couple of calls from Portland media outlets about a group of 11 protesters who again set up camp at Terry Schunk Plaza in Portland last night. They have chained themselves to each other and to a large drum filled with concrete. GSA controls the permits and has asked FPS not to enforce the curfew at the park and the prohibition on overnight encampments. Reporters are asking if FPS will be arresting folks as they did last week. Portland PD is telling reporters it's FPS' decision (though the jurisdiction over the park is jointly shared by FPS, the City of Portland and the State of Oregon.)

I've spoken to the FPS CDR on the ground and he says they are standing down and following GSA's request to only intervene if there is a threat to public safety until they here otherwise from DHS.

Looping you in as this seems to be an operational question more than a comms question. Obviously, any decision on posture towards protesters setting up camp in federal parks will have ramifications for Occupy Portland and for protests in other cities. Please advise.

Thanks,
Chris

Here are a few stories. If we think how they're characterizing this is a problem, I can reach out to the Portland PD spokesperson and ask that he say this is a GSA decision. I have his contact.

AP: 5 protesters remain locked to barrel, each other at Occupy Portland

Portland, Ore. - Five protesters remain chained to each other and a 50-gallon drum filled with rocks and concrete at a downtown Portland plaza.

Police said late Saturday that two of the five Occupy Portland protesters are handcuffed to a piece of metal inside the barrel in Terry Schrunk Plaza, which is federal property. At one point during the night, eleven people linked themselves together and to the men in handcuffs by using U-shaped bike locks. Five remained locked up midday Sunday.

Portland police spokesman Pete Simpson told The Oregonian on Sunday morning that the Federal Protective Services had decided to let the protesters occupy Schrunk Plaza, a federal park, for the time being.

KGW: 'Occupy' protesters chain up at Schrunk Plaza

PORTLAND - Some members of the "Occupy Portland" movement moved into Schrunk Plaza Saturday night and chained themselves to a barrel of cement.

So far, federal authorities haven't tried to force out the seven individuals.

They spent the night there with temperatures dipping into the mid 30's - and even set up a couple of tents.

The protesters said it was in direct response to arrests of "Occupy" protesters around the country.

Schrunk Plaza is policed by the Federal Protective Services.

Last Tuesday, officers they arrested 10 occupy protesters here.

Meanwhile, protesters calling themselves "the Real Occupy Portland" claimed responsibility for vandalism at two banks on Northeast Sandy Boulevard on Saturday.

They claimed that the methods used by the "Occupy Portland" general assembly were ineffective.

The Oregonian: Five protesters remain chained together at Terry Schrunk Plaza

After a cold night chained to a 50-gallon drum filled with concrete, five protesters remained bound together at Terry Schrunk Plaza Sunday morning after starting Saturday night with 11 linked together with bike locks.

"It wasn't cold," said Cameron Whitten, 20. "There were a lot of people here to make sure our needs were met. It felt amazing just to stay in this space and send a message of importance to the public."

Whitten said he saw federal law enforcement officers conferring with Portland police, but that only local officers chatted with the protesters and did "a few surveys."

Portland police spokesman Pete Simpson said Sunday morning that the Federal Protective Services had decided to let the protesters occupy Schrunk Plaza, a federal park, for the time being.

All,

Apologies for interrupting your Sunday, but I've received a couple of calls from Portland media outlets about a group of 11 protesters who again set up camp at Terry Schunk Plaza in Portland last night. They have chained themselves to each other and to a large drum filled with concrete. GSA controls the permits and has asked FPS not to enforce the curfew at the park and the prohibition on overnight encampments. Reporters are asking if FPS will be arresting folks as they did last week. Portland PD is telling reporters it's FPS' decision (though the jurisdiction over the park is jointly shared by FPS, the City of Portland and the State of Oregon.)

I've spoken to the FPS CDR on the ground and he says they are standing down and following GSA's request to only intervene if there is a threat to public safety until they here otherwise from DHS.

Looping you in as this seems to be an operational question more than a comms question. Obviously, any decision on posture towards protesters setting up camp in federal parks will have ramifications for Occupy Portland and for protests in other cities. Please advise.

Thanks,
Chris

Portland, Ore. - Five protesters remain chained to each other and a 50-gallon drum filled with rocks and concrete at a downtown Portland plaza.

Police said late Saturday that two of the five Occupy Portland protesters are handcuffed to a piece of metal inside the barrel in Terry Schrunk Plaza, which is federal property. At one point during the night, eleven people linked themselves together and to the men in handcuffs by using U-shaped bike locks. Five remained locked up midday Sunday.

Portland police spokesman Pete Simpson told The Oregonian on Sunday morning that the Federal Protective Services had decided to let the protesters occupy Schrunk Plaza, a federal park, for the time being.

KGW: 'Occupy' protesters chain up at Schrunk Plaza

PORTLAND - Some members of the "Occupy Portland" movement moved into Schrunk Plaza Saturday night and chained themselves to a barrel of cement.

So far, federal authorities haven't tried to force out the seven individuals.

They spent the night there with temperatures dipping into the mid 30's - and even set up a couple of tents.

The protesters said it was in direct response to arrests of "Occupy" protesters around the country.

Schrunk Plaza is policed by the Federal Protective Services.

Last Tuesday, officers they arrested 10 occupy protesters here.

Meanwhile, protesters calling themselves "the Real Occupy Portland" claimed responsibility for vandalism at two banks on Northeast Sandy Boulevard on Saturday.

They claimed that the methods used by the "Occupy Portland" general assembly were ineffective.

PORTLAND - Some members of the "Occupy Portland" movement moved into Schunk Plaza Saturday night and chained themselves to a barrel of cement.

So far, federal authorities haven't tried to force out the seven individuals.

They spent the night there with temperatures dipping into the mid 30's - and even set up a couple of tents.

The protesters said it was in direct response to arrests of "Occupy" protesters around the country.

Schunk Plaza is policed by the Federal Protective Services.

Last Tuesday, officers they arrested 10 occupy protesters here.

Meanwhile, protesters calling themselves "the Real Occupy Portland" claimed responsibility for vandalism at two banks on Northeast Sandy Boulevard on Saturday.

They claimed that the methods used by the "Occupy Portland" general assembly were ineffective.

The Oregonian: Five protesters remain chained together at Terry Schunk Plaza

After a cold night chained to a 50-gallon drum filled with concrete, five protesters remained bound together at Terry Schunk Plaza Sunday morning after starting Saturday night with 11 linked together with bike locks.

"It wasn't cold," said Cameron Whitten, 20. "There were a lot of people here to make sure our needs were met. It felt amazing just to stay in this space and send a message of importance to the public."

Whitten said he saw federal law enforcement officers conferring with Portland police, but that only local officers chatted with the protesters and did "a few surveys."

Portland police spokesman Pete Simpson said Sunday morning that the Federal Protective Services had decided to let the protesters occupy Schrunk Plaza, a federal park, for the time being.

All,

Apologies for interrupting your Sunday, but I've received a couple of calls from Portland media outlets about a group of 11 protesters who again set up camp at Terry Schunk Plaza in Portland last night. They have chained themselves to each other and to a large drum filled with concrete. GSA controls the permits and has asked FPS not to enforce the curfew at the park and the prohibition on overnight encampments. Reporters are asking if FPS will be arresting folks as they did last week. Portland PD is telling reporters it's FPS' decision (though the jurisdiction over the park is jointly shared by FPS, the City of Portland and the State of Oregon.)

I've spoken to the FPS CDR on the ground and he says they are standing down and following GSA's request to only intervene if there is a threat to public safety until they here otherwise from DHS.

Looping you in as this seems to be an operational question more than a comms question. Obviously, any decision on posture towards protesters setting up camp in federal parks will have ramifications for Occupy Portland and for protests in other cities. Please advise.

Thanks,
Chris

Hi Kris:

Don and I just participated in a conference call with Crim Chief Bill Williams and GSA Regional Commissioner Rob Graf. I had a subsequent conversation with Bill Williams. At 10:00 a.m. PST, during his press conference, the Portland Mayor will most likely set a 12:01 a.m., Sunday, November 13th deadline for Occupy Portland to shut down their encampments and vacate the Parks. It is unclear whether the Mayor will also specifically include Schrunk Plaza in his eviction notice. Yet, the Mayor is concerned that upon hearing the news, the protesters will immediately relocate to Schrunk Plaza. Therefore, the Mayor and the Portland PD is soliciting GSA/FPS' assistance in: 1) preventing the protesters to move into Schrunk Plaza; and 2) arresting those who are already encamped there if they won't leave.

Rob Graf stated that he spoke with the Mayor late yesterday afternoon. Rob reiterated GSA's position allowing encampments on Shrunken Plaza, but if the Mayor or PPD had "soundly based" evidence of public health and safety concerns, then GSA would not object to evictions.

*Portland PD has now asked GSA and/or FPS to issue press release announcing GSA's position and FPS' support if PPD decides it is in the public interest to evict protesters from Schrunk Plaza.

We were told the Mayor's press conference (1:00 p.m. EST) will be streamed live on Portland's website.

Subject: FW: CBS NEWS MEDIA REQUEST

We're getting inquiries from CBS, AP, Daily Caller, Salon and others on an un-sourced Examiner.com piece that says DHS and FBI are collaborating with cities by providing tactics and information on removing Occupy protestors. A check of I&A and FPS shows that this type of outreach is not occurring in any wholesale manner. Please see below clarifying DHS/FPS' role in law enforcement around protest sites:

"We are treating all of these protests nationwide as peaceful demonstrations. If a protest area is located on Federal property and has been deemed unsanitary or unsafe by the General Services Administration (GSA) or city officials, and they make a decision to evacuate participants, the Federal Protective Service will work with those officials to develop a plan to ensure the security and safety of everyone involved."

ON BACKGROUND

- FPS only has jurisdiction when a protest takes place on federal property, and in some cases, shares that jurisdiction with local authorities.

The GSA is the permitting authority for protests on federal property.

- DHS is not actively coordinating with local law enforcement agencies and/or city governments concerning the evictions of Occupy encampments writ large.
- FPS has only been involved in one instance in removing protestors, in Portland, OR. FPS was assisting the Portland Police Bureau at the federally-owned Terry Schunk Plaza where FPS arrested several people.

Hi there,

My name is Bigad Shaban and I am a correspondent with CBS News (national).

We'd like to request comment from the Department of Homeland Security concerning whether it, or any other federal agencies, offered any kind of assistance or advice to municipalities looking to dismantle their own Anti-Wallstreet "Occupy" protests.

Published reports note a relationship between the federal government and cities orchestrating the removal of "Occupy protestors" from makeshift camp sites.

We're getting inquiries from CBS, AP, Daily Caller, Salon and others on an un-sourced Examiner.com piece that says DHS and FBI are collaborating with cities by providing tactics and information on removing Occupy protestors. A check of I&A and FPS shows that this type of outreach is not occurring in any wholesale manner. Please see below clarifying DHS/FPS' role in law enforcement around protest sites:

"We are treating all of these protests nationwide as peaceful demonstrations. If a protest area is located on Federal property and has been deemed unsanitary or unsafe by the General Services Administration (GSA) or city officials, and they make a decision to evacuate participants, the Federal Protective Service will work with those officials to develop a plan to ensure the security and safety of everyone involved."

ON BACKGROUND

- FPS only has jurisdiction when a protest takes place on federal property, and in some cases, shares that jurisdiction with local authorities.

The GSA is the permitting authority for protests on federal property.

We'd like to request comment from the Department of Homeland Security concerning whether it, or any other federal agencies, offered any kind of assistance or advice to municipalities looking to dismantle their own Anti-Wallstreet "Occupy" protests.

Published reports note a relationship between the federal government and cities orchestrating the removal of "Occupy protestors" from makeshift camp sites.

Likely OBE, but here are TPs from the USCG should there be any follow up q's:

*The protesters, while large in number - estimated at 4,500 - are predominantly peaceful; however, a small pocket of individuals damaged some property in the City of Oakland earlier today. The protesters are now moving towards the Port of Oakland on foot.

*The Coast Guard has been working in close coordination with the Oakland Police Department (PD) over the last 48 hours. Neither the CG nor Oakland PD expect waterside protests to occur.

*There may be a need for waterside access to accommodate facility staffing.

oThe Coast Guard will assist as necessary on the water.

o Approximately 50 local law enforcement and county emergency response agencies participate in and support the local Coast Guard led Neptune Coalition. All of these agencies are linked together through the Coast Guard Sector San Francisco Interagency Operations Center (IOC).

*The Port of Oakland was open for business today. Some ILWU port workers did not show up for work and therefore, cargo movements were slower than normal throughout the day.

oLabor gangs were ordered out this evening, but most of the container terminals closed due to anticipated street closures caused by Occupy protesters.

*There are Coast Guard personnel assigned to and embedded in the Port of Oakland's Emergency Operations Center 24/7 to assist the Port and liaison with the Coast Guard, and to monitor the security situation.

oCoast Guard personnel will remain on station until the Port fully reopens.

*Sector San Francisco has a ready 87' coastal patrol boat underway in San Francisco Bay, and several multi-mission small boat stations ready to respond if needed. Air Station San Francisco has a B-0 aircraft ready to respond as well.

*Coast Guard Sector San Francisco, District 11, and Pacific Area who are all located in the Bay Area, will continue to monitor Occupy protests throughout the evening and respond as needed.

All,

Here is the info from the CA Fusion Center via the NOC.

Probably not pertinent to tonight's NYC event, but worth noting internally that the protesters intent was to disrupt a mode of transportation hub.

Sir

Per our phone conversation, the following was received from the Fusion Rep in Northern, CA, reference Oakland Port protests.

~~(U//FOUO)~~ Coast Guard personnel at the Dellums federal building have already cleared out. Broadway in downtown Oakland was without traffic, and some police presence, four choppers overhead. Police have escorted protesters to the port of Oakland, including motorbike escort for 100-200 cyclists who passed in front of me at an intersection I just drove through in Oakland an hour ago.

~~(U//FOUO)~~ Per current press accounts on SFgate.com, dozens of trucks sat idling at the port while the protesters chanted "Empties go, cargo no." NCRIC's maritime representative advised that longshoremen had agreed not to cross protest lines. The timing of the protest to close the port was reportedly negotiated to limit impact on port operations.

~~(U//FOUO)~~ Other than a few smashed windows at a number of banks, today's events have remained First Amendment protected protest activities. NCRIC is not monitoring protected activity, but is in touch with the Oakland EOC in the event circumstances change. Alameda County has made a mutual aid request for 750 allied agency law enforcement officers

Subject: Potential Protest Impact on Oakland, CA Port Operations

Amy:

Unrelated to the reefer unit hazard you asked about, we are monitoring another issue in Oakland that could potentially impact port operations there.

Per the below, Oakland Police expects a large number of protesters to picket the Port of Oakland as early as 2000 EDT today. We have no indications at this early stage that this will disrupt operations (there are no shipments expected there this evening), but CG Sector San Francisco is monitoring the situation.

I anticipate CBP is also engaged and monitoring this issue and may have amplifying information.

~~UNCLAS FOUO~~

UPDATE 1

SITUATION: Oakland Police Department (OPD) expects a large number of mostly peaceful protesters to picket the Port of Oakland prior to the start of tonight's 02 Nov night shift, starting as early as 1700 PDT.

ACTIONS TAKEN: CG employees at the Ronald V. Dellums Federal building in Oakland have been advised to telecommute when possible, in an attempt to avoid conflict with the General Strike demonstrators located outside the building. Base Support Unit Alameda has set up 30 workstations on CG Island for use by CG employees affected by the demonstration.

FUTURE PLANS: OPD and Alameda County Sheriff will have boats available for officer transport to the port if required, and Sector San Francisco is standing by to assist them with incidents. The impact to the port is expected to be minimal: no shipments are scheduled to enter port tonight.

WHSR, NORTHCOM, DOT and DHS/NOC SWO, ASWO and CG watch have been notified.

INITIAL

SITUATION: Open source media reports that the Occupy Wall Street movement intends to march in Oakland, CA today. Events are set to begin at 0900 PST and are expected to culminate with a march to the Port of Oakland, where local protesters say the goal is to stop work at the port before the 1900 PST evening shift.

FUTURE PLANS: NCC will continue to monitor the situation and provide updates.

WHSR, NORTHCOM, DOT and DHS/NOC SWO, ASWO and CG watch have been notified.

demonstrators march toward the Port of Portland this morning. Protesters say they're targeting Wall Street on the Waterfront, and that the ports are an engine of wealth for country's richest 1 percent.

Hundreds Occupy Portland protesters effectively shut down two of the Port of Portland's busiest terminals, preventing about 200 longshore workers from going to work today.

The demonstrations began about 6 a.m. and have been largely peaceful so far.

Port spokesman Josh Thomas said longshore workers at terminals 5 and 6 were told to stay home. They will not be paid for today, he said.

Jennifer Sargent, spokeswoman for the Coast Longshore Division of the ILWU, said about 200 longshore workers are affected.

"Ironically the union does support the overarching goals of the Occupy movement, even though we don't endorse this particular action today," she said.

Said one protester: "We are in solidarity with them even if they don't know it."

Portland police have made a few arrests so far, including a driver who had a suspended license and was traveling with a loaded gun and a sword. A passenger in the car was arrested on an accusation of a parole or probation violation. Both people told officers they were headed to the Occupy Portland demonstration.

Also, officers arrested the driver of a stolen pickup who told police he was headed to the protest.

Protesters in Portland join groups of protesters in a "day of action" aiming to shut down ports along the West Coast, including Longview; Los Angeles; San Diego; Tacoma, Wash.; Seattle; Anchorage, Alaska; and Oakland, Calif.

Port spokesman Josh Thomas said five arriving or departing ships could be disrupted by the demonstrations, along with trains and hundreds of trucks that bring goods to and from the port each day.

As protesters gathered, about a dozen big rigs were lined up at Terminal 6.

Occupy Portland representatives said last week that they're targeting "Wall Street on the Waterfront," and that the ports are an engine of wealth for country's richest 1 percent.

They pointed out SSA Marine, a cargo handling company with an operation at the Port of Portland. The Wall Street investment bank Goldman Sachs owns a majority share of SSA Marine's parent company, Carrix.

They're also showing solidarity with the International Longshore and Warehouse Union Local 21 in Longview, which is engaged in a bitter labor dispute over staffing of a grain terminal operated by EGT LLC.

The longshore union has publicly distanced itself from the demonstration, saying it would only prevent longshoremen from working that day. Occupy Portland maintains it has been in contact with rank-and-file members who support the action.

The Gladstone-based International Union of Operating Engineers Local 701, whose members staff the EGT terminal, condemned the demonstration, calling it "misguided" and accusing the ILWU of co-opting the Occupy Wall Street message.

The Port of Portland has planned to have extra port police and marine security officers on hand, and it has coordinated with the Portland Police Bureau for backup, Thomas said. Homeland Security regulations prohibit non-credentialed people from entering secured parts of the marine terminal, and the port's security will concentrate on keeping those areas clear, he said.

Really great to keep part of the 99% from earning today just before Christmas. Exactly how did it hurt the 1%?

The regrettable thing about the Occupy movement is that, while it galvanizes the converted, it sometimes hurts those it seeks to help and antagonizes or simply disinterests others. It's focus on wealth also obscures the deeper cultural issues that keep us locked in national gridlock, frustration and disarray. See America-adrift.com. Until we change, the prospect for progress over our national problems will remain very illusive.

Thanks a lot OP, I am sure the workers will appreciate missing work with Christmas two weeks away. This makes me sick; furthermore it is a selfish act by what is turning into nothing more than a bunch of rough necks with no moral fiber. I want this country to be fixed as much as anyone, I just want people with some brain cells to do the heavy lifting.

Location: Portland, Oregon

Protesters have blocked entrances to two terminals at the Port of Portland this morning, preventing trucks from entering.

Several hundred demonstrators reportedly marched from North Portland's Kelly Point Park to the marine terminals, then split into two groups and rallied at the entrances to terminals 5 and 6. The gates to the terminals are currently closed and blocked by police wearing riot gear.

According to Forbes, Terminal 5 is dedicated to grain and commodities exports, while Terminal 6 is a hub for the state's Asian imports.

A port spokesman said workers at both terminals were told to stay home today. He declined to say how many workers were affected by the closure.

Demonstrators march at Port of Longview; longshoremen sent home

By The Daily News The Daily News Online | Posted: Monday, December 12, 2011 10:00 am | Loading...

An Occupy protest at the Port of Longview thinned out Monday morning after sparking a longshore walkout earlier in the day.

Shortly before 10 a.m., about 40 demonstrators moved to the intersection of Fibre Way and East Mill Road near the entry to the EGT grain terminal. They were not attempting to block any vehicles, but they were demonstrating with signs supporting union labor and blasting what they perceived as corporate greed and arrogance.

At daybreak, about 100 demonstrators marched in front of one of the main entrances to the port off East Mill Way, just off to the side of the Lewis and Clark Bridge.

Demonstrators were there in part to back the International Longshore and Warehouse Union in its long-running labor dispute with EGT, which has not hired ILWU workers to run its new $200 million grain terminal at the port.

Despite the pro-labor nature of the rally here and across the West Coast ports, ILWU concerns about how members' "health and safety" would be affected by the demonstration prevented them from working Monday, according to Dan Coffman, president of ILWU Local 21. The union worked out a pay arrangement with the Pacific Maritime Association, which represents shippers, to send dockworkers home and pay them for four hours, Coffman said.

A longshore labor leader was later seen bringing Starbucks coffee to some demonstrators, who were out on the chilliest morning of the season. Frost had iced over grass and had glazed over most streets in the port area.

Longshore leadership has carefully avoided making official pronouncements of support of the Occupy movement, fearful that they could again be found in violation of a federal court injunction prohibiting the union from impeding commerce at the port.

It was not immediately known how many workers got paid to go home, and the impact of the work stoppage on port activities also was not immediately clear. Two ships were tied up at the port.

About half of the early morning protesters were from out of town, and they left in midmorning to join the Occupy demonstration at the Port of Portland.

At the bigger of Monday's two demonstrations, protesters marched in a clockwise direction in front of the entrance to the port of East Port Way, carrying signs and chanting to a drum beat. No arrests were made. Police presence was light, with a single Longview police vehicle parked across East Port Way

It was uncertain whether the demonstrators intended to block any commercial vehicle attempting to turn into the port at that location. No such vehicle had attempted to turn into the area over the past 90 minutes or so. However, the demonstrators parted to allow two private cars to pass without incident.

UPDATE 1

SITUATION: Oakland Police Department (OPD) expects a large number of mostly peaceful protesters to picket the Port of Oakland prior to the start of tonight's 02 Nov night shift, starting as early as 1700 PDT.

ACTIONS TAKEN: CG employees at the Ronald V. Dellums Federal building in Oakland have been advised to telecommute when possible, in an attempt to avoid conflict with the General Strike demonstrators located outside the building. Base Support Unit Alameda has set up 30 workstations on CG Island for use by CG employees affected by the demonstration.

FUTURE PLANS: OPD and Alameda County Sheriff will have boats available for officer transport to the port if required, and (b) (7)(E)

(b) (7)(E) The impact to the port is expected to be minimal: no shipments are scheduled to enter port tonight.

WHSR, NORTHCOM, DOT and DHS/NOC SWO, ASWO and CG watch have been notified.

INITIAL

SITUATION: Open source media reports that the Occupy Wall Street movement intends to march in Oakland, CA today. Events are set to begin at 0900 PST and are expected to culminate with a march to the Port of Oakland, where local protesters say the goal is to stop work at the port before the 1900 PST evening shift.

~~(U//FOUO)~~ Coast Guard personnel at the Dellums federal building have already cleared out. Broadway in downtown Oakland was without traffic, and some police presence, four choppers overhead. Police have escorted protesters to the port of Oakland, including motorbike escort for 100-200 cyclists who passed in front of me at an intersection I just drove through in Oakland an hour ago.

~~(U//FOUO)~~ Per current press accounts on SFgate.com, dozens of trucks sat idling at the port while the protesters chanted "Empties go, cargo no." NCRIC's maritime representative advised that longshoremen had agreed not to cross protest lines. The timing of the protest to close the port was reportedly negotiated to limit impact on port operations.

~~(U//FOUO)~~ Other than a few smashed windows at a number of banks, today's events have remained First Amendment protected protest activities. NCRIC is not monitoring protected activity, but is in touch with the Oakland EOC in the event circumstances change. Based on info we're getting from some of the officers booking in those arrested, it appears that they are from out-of-state and most are giving aliases, false names, etc. We will attempt to compile a list of names, addresses, dob's, etc...

Hello! My apologies for the confusion with this RFI. This RFI was a genuine effort to only support our Chicago PD desk officer here at the NOC to gain points of contact in the various fusion centers not represented at the NOC. I understand I&A's concerns with the wording of the RFI and OPS also follows the same concerns about reporting on protected first amendment rights. I have modified the RFI to reflect only a request for points of contact within the fusion centers listed to ensure it is not viewed as a request for information on a named group.

Subject: NOC # 1211-11 S1 RFI - Potential Port Shutdown Threat - West Coast, US and Canada by the Occupy Movement

Good Afternoon,

RFI: DHS NOC requests ICE provide what actions they will be taking to prepare for the potential protests from the "Occupy Movement". The locations possibly affected are:

- Vancouver, B.C.
- California - Los Angeles
- California - San Diego
- Washington - Seattle
- California - Oakland
- Oregon - Portland
- Texas - Houston

ICE Response:

San Diego

The SAC San Diego is aware of the potential shutdown and is coordinating with CBP and San Diego Harbor Police. The SAC San Diego does not plan at this time to assist with any law enforcement operations unless requested.

Seattle

The SAC Seattle is in contact with the U.S. Coast Guard and have a Port of Seattle Police Officer assigned to the BEST in Seattle. SAC Seattle will continue to monitor the situation but does not have an active role at this time.

San Francisco

Previously, the Occupy Oakland protesters conducted a march to the Port of Oakland on November 2, 2011 with the cooperation of unionized longshoremen, which resulted in the Port of Oakland shutting down for several hours. In late November 2011, the Occupy Oakland group began calling for a shutdown of West Coast ports for December 12, 2011, which has been openly opposed by the International Longshore and Warehouse Union (ILWU), the union representing longshoremen.

In light of a possible protest/shutdown involving the Port of Oakland and the need to ensure the continuity of operations connected to the Port of Oakland, SAC San Francisco has undertaken the following proactive measures:

- Coordination with U.S. Customs and Border Protection, which maintains an office at the Port of Oakland, on contingencies to ensure both the safety of DHS employees and the continuity of operations.
- Coordination with the U.S. Coast Guard to ensure security, safety and the continuity of operations.

- Liaison with local law enforcement agencies (the Alameda County Sheriff's Office; the Oakland Police Department). It is important to note that local law enforcement agencies have limited cooperation with ICE/HSI due to sanctuary policies enacted by local governments.
- Ensuring that the San Francisco BEST group and all local SAC San Francisco agents are alerted to the possibility of a strike/shutdown, and that a DHS response may be required to ensure security, safety, and/or continuity of operations.
- Placing the San Francisco SRT on notice that they may be required to assist local law enforcement if needed, whether that is in the role of offering advice to a formal activation.

Basic security for the Port of Oakland remains the responsibility of local law enforcement agencies and not ICE/HSI. However, the SAC San Francisco is prepared to respond and offer assistance to local law enforcement consistent with our training and authorities.

Situational Awareness: December 12, 2011, Occupy Wall Street Protest Scheduled – West Coast Seaport shut down planned – Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego and Houston – CBP coordination ongoing with stakeholders

Summary:

Occupy Wall Street (OWS) movement began in New York September 2011. The OWS movement has spread to over 100 cities in the U.S. with the intent on fighting back against the role of Wall Street creating an economic collapse. The OWS protesters have a diverse set of demands ranging from equal distribution of income, bank reform, the need for expanded job opportunities to a reduction of corporate influence on politics.

OWS also aims to fight back against the richest 1% of the population they claim are writing the rules of an unfair global economy that is foreclosing on our future. OWS is a non-binding consensus based assembly with no official group of leaders. OWS has also spawned multiple sub affiliated groups calling upon on union members, youth and artists to actively participate. This collaboration with organizations and unions has supported the increased number of protests across the country. The ILWU (International Longshoreman and Warehouse Union) does not publicly support the Port blockades, considers the blockade a third party strike and will not actively participate however,

(b) (7)(E)

On Monday, December 12, 2011 a West Coast wide OWS protest has been scheduled as part of its attempt to shutdown West Coast seaports. These demonstrations are planned in the following locations:

- Anchorage, Alaska
- Los Angeles, California
- San Diego, California
- Oakland, California
- Portland, Oregon
- Houston, Texas
- Seattle, Washington
- Tacoma, Washington

In preparation for these protests, the Field Offices of Houston, Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco and Seattle are actively engaged with local law enforcement and trade partners to establish contingency plans in the event these protests impact any CBP location.

Details:

Houston Field Office:

- The OWS protest will begin at the Turning Basin Terminal (City Docks) in Houston, Texas.
- The Port of Houston Authority (POHA) is coordinating with the Houston Police Department to allow the protesters to protest outside of the terminal grounds.
- A CBP (b)(7)(E) is located near the protest location.
- POHA has requested that CBP divert (b)(7)(E) traffic to an alternate gate in the event the exit is shut down or adversely impacted.
- The Houston Field Office (b)(7)(E) in the event Operators are needed to support the security of CBP personnel.
- Houston Seaport employees have been mustered to direct any media inquiries to the Houston Field Office, Public Affairs Officer.

Los Angeles Field Office:

- CBP Los Angeles is participating with coordination/communication meetings with local law enforcement and public safety partners to discuss the potential "OWS" activity. Partners include the Los Angeles PD, Los Angeles Port Police, Long Beach PD, USCG, TSA FAMS, Union Pacific Police, and LA Fire Department.
- The LA/LB OWS protest plans are to assemble at Harry Bridges Park in Long Beach located near the Queen Mary and cruise ship processing terminal and then to march to the nearest terminal with the intent of shutting down terminal operations.
- A LE Command Post will be activated at the Long Beach Coordination Center. The initiation date and time has not yet been determined. CBP Los Angeles will have a (b)(7)(E) in the Command Post.

San Diego:

- The CBP Port of San Diego has coordinated with USCG, TSA, San Diego Harbor Police, San Diego Police Department and Port Authority regarding the potential shutdown.
- Protesters are scheduled to assemble at 0600 at a local city park then march a few blocks to the 10th Avenue seaport terminal.
- OWS protesters will be protest along the 10th Ave seaport terminal gates that lead to the docks. Their objective is to prevent longshoreman and port support staff from accessing their worksites, therefore halting work in the terminal.
- CBP San Diego mustered all CBP staff and advised them of the pending situation. Additionally, (b)(7)(E) (b)(7)(E) for CBP personnel have been identified.
- All CBP personnel have been advised not to engage with the OWS movement supporters.

San Francisco Field Office:

Anchorage:

- CBP does not have an office located at the Anchorage seaport.
- Should any disruption of operations occur the CBP Anchorage Area Port Offices, the (b)(7)(E) (b)(7)(E)(b)(7)(E)

Protesters have blocked entrances to two terminals at the Port of Portland this morning, preventing trucks from entering.

Several hundred demonstrators reportedly marched from North Portland's Kelly Point Park to the marine terminals, then split into two groups and rallied at the entrances to terminals 5 and 6. The gates to the terminals are currently closed and blocked by police wearing riot gear.

According to Forbes, Terminal 5 is dedicated to grain and commodities exports, while Terminal 6 is a hub for the state's Asian imports.

A port spokesman said workers at both terminals were told to stay home today. He declined to say how many workers were affected by the closure.

Situational Awareness: December 12, 2011, Occupy Wall Street Protest Scheduled – West Coast Seaport shut down planned – Seattle, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego and Houston – CBP coordination ongoing with stakeholders

Summary:

Occupy Wall Street (OWS) movement began in New York September 2011. The OWS movement has spread to over 100 cities in the U.S. with the intent on fighting back against the role of Wall Street creating an economic collapse. The OWS protesters have a diverse set of demands ranging from equal distribution of income, bank reform, the need for expanded job opportunities to a reduction of corporate influence on politics.

OWS also aims to fight back against the richest 1% of the population they claim are writing the rules of an unfair global economy that is foreclosing on our future. OWS is a non-binding consensus based assembly with no official group of leaders. OWS has also spawned multiple sub affiliated groups calling upon on union members, youth and artists to actively participate. This collaboration with organizations and unions has supported the increased number of protests across the country. The ILWU (International Longshoreman and Warehouse Union) does not publicly support the Port blockades, considers the blockade a third party strike and will not actively participate however,

TIME OF INCIDENT: 10:15 AM	Oakland, CA	(b)(7)(E)

CBP is being advised that this closure is a combination of Longshoremen dissatisfaction of working conditions due to the Vietnamese exploding container issue and to show support for the Occupy Oakland Protest. Currently Occupy Oakland Protest movement plans on marching the Oakland Seaport on November 2, 2011 at 17:00 hrs. Several news stations have posted broadcast vehicles in the port to cover this situation.

At 16:30 Protesters from the Occupy Oakland Movement entered the Port of Oakland by buses and bicycles blocked all intersections and exits of the marine terminals. (b)(7)(E)

(b)(7)(E)
