

it was brought to my attention the report was pulled (other steps have also been taken). However the fed staff undertook a thorough review and every source is traditional media. The report references social media resources but that was found in traditional sources. No monitoring of social media took place.

(b) (5)

Congress requires DHS' National Operations Center (NOC) "to provide situational awareness and establish a common operating picture for the entire federal government and for state, local, and tribal governments as appropriate, in the event of a natural disaster or terrorist attack and ensure that critical terrorism and disaster-related information reaches government decision-makers." Under this requirement, the NOC monitors social media only for situational awareness purposes during times of crisis, such as a terrorist attack or earthquake.

Congress requires DHS' National Operations Center (NOC) "to provide situational awareness and establish a common operating picture for the entire federal government and for state, local, and tribal governments as appropriate, in the event of a natural disaster or terrorist attack and ensure that critical terrorism and disaster-related information reaches government decision-makers." Under this requirement, the NOC monitors social media only for situational awareness purposes during times of crisis, such as a terrorist attack or earthquake.

Background: IP (POD division) compiles an open source report on critical infrastructure which is posted to HSIN. The contract for this service recently changed and the new contractor inappropriately conducted some "analysis" to the open source information (in this case). When it was brought to my attention the report was pulled (other steps have also been taken). However the fed staff undertook a thorough review and every source is traditional media. The report references social media resources but that was found in traditional sources. No monitoring of social media took place.

Definitely think that the more we can push back on any inaccuracies the better.

That said, assuming he isn't going to pull down the blog post, with other similar privacy related issues out there, we need a clear statement that explains that this report was drafted in violation of our privacy standards.

MEC says it would be more accurate to say they were "outside the scope of their authority"

Congress requires DHS' National Operations Center (NOC) "to provide situational awareness and establish a common operating picture for the entire federal government and for state, local, and tribal governments as appropriate, in the event of a natural disaster or terrorist attack and ensure that critical terrorism and disaster-related information reaches government decision-makers." Under this requirement, the NOC monitors social media only for situational awareness purposes during times of crisis, such as a terrorist attack or earthquake.

Background: IP (POD division) compiles an open source report on critical infrastructure which is posted to HSIN. The contract for this service recently changed and the new contractor inappropriately conducted some "analysis" to the open source information (in this case). When it was brought to my attention the report was pulled (other steps have also been taken). However the fed staff undertook a thorough review and every source is traditional media. The report references social media resources but that was found in traditional sources. No monitoring of social media took place.

Background: IP (POD division) compiles an open source report on critical infrastructure which is posted to HSIN. The contract for this service recently changed and the new contractor inappropriately conducted some "analysis" to the open source information (in this case). When it was brought to my attention the report was pulled (other steps have also been taken). However the fed staff undertook a thorough review and every source is traditional media. The report references social media resources but that was found in traditional sources. No monitoring of social media took place.

Congress requires DHS' National Operations Center (NOC) "to provide situational awareness and establish a common operating picture for the entire federal government and for state, local, and tribal governments as appropriate, in the event of a natural disaster or terrorist attack and ensure that critical terrorism and disaster-related information reaches government decision-makers." Under this requirement, the NOC monitors social media only for situational awareness purposes during times of crisis, such as a terrorist attack or earthquake.

No, Stratfor was not the contractor. The document was posted on HSIN. I don't know how Stratfor may have obtained a copy but it's plausible.

Bill, was stratfor the contractor who wrote the doc? If so, they were the ones hacked, not hsin. See below.

Rolling Stone contributing editor Michael Hastings tells Cenk how the Department of Homeland Security monitored Occupy Wall Street activists, according to emails from private intelligence contractor Stratfor that were released by WikiLeaks. Hastings asks, "Do we want our taxpayer dollars going to the government monitoring what should be a natural part of the democratic process?"

Subject: 'Anonymous'-Linked Hackers Expose Personal Information Of Thousands Of American Police Officers, Family-Values Advocates--MMC IOI #7082-11

Location: United States

Computer hackers are avenging the Occupy movement by exposing the personal information of police officers who evicted protesters and are threatening family-values advocates who led a boycott of an American Muslim television show.

In three Internet postings last week, hackers from the loose online coalition called Anonymous published the personal information of thousands of law enforcement officers all over the country.

One hacker posted the email and physical addresses, phone numbers and encrypted passwords of more than 2,400 police officers and corporate security executives. The targeted police officers and security personnel were members of the Coalition of Law Enforcement and Retail (CLEAR), a nonprofit group that promotes cooperation between local police forces and retail corporations throughout the United States.

Another hacker struck the website of the Florida Family Association. In an Internet posting, he told the family association he was reading its email, and he published email addresses and partial credit-card information of two dozen or so of the group's supporters.

A third hacker posted 18,000 emails, names and passwords of customers from Specialforces.com, a website that sells military-style clothing and weapon accessories. A brief review suggested that many of the customers might be police officers or military personnel and identifiable as such by their emails.

We are preparing to publish our membership magazine, Flightlog, and would like to run an article on the Blue Lightning campaign. We could run something similar to the article that appeared in our e-newsletter below. Is there any new information that we might add at this point in time? Also, are you still interested in input from our AFA Air Safety, Health and Security Department on the training video for Flight Attendants? I would very much like to mention this collaboration in the article, if possible. Thank you for all of your important work.

Moving Our Contracts Forward

PSA

PSA Flight Attendants ratified a five-year agreement on March 27 that includes pay increases and quality of life enhancements for the over 300 Flight Attendants.

Press Release

Hawaiian

Utilizing a Facilitated Problem Solving approach to negotiations through the National Mediation Board (NMB), the AFA Hawaiian Negotiating Committee was able to quickly reach a tentative agreement with management on March 12 that recognizes the contributions of the over 1,200 Flight Attendants. The tentative agreement, which would run through December 31, 2016, includes annual increases in rates of pay as well as improvements in per diem, uniform allowance and pension contribution. It was recommended unanimously by the AFA Hawaiian MEC for ratification by the membership. Ballots will be counted on April 18.

Press Release

US Airways

Flight Attendants from the pre-merger airlines, US Airways and former America West, voted against a tentative agreement offered by US Airways management on March 30. Ninety percent of the combined

6,700 Flight Attendants participated in the voting process. They sent an unequivocal message that their sacrifices must be recognized and that they will participate in the benefits of the merger. After five years of stalling and road blocks by management, the Joint Negotiating Committee (JNC) delivered a tentative agreement that gave members a chance to voice their position directly to management. AFA leadership will meet next week to set in motion a plan that maximizes the leverage created by an engaged, unified work force.

Press Release

Mesaba

Pinnacle Airlines, which merged with Mesaba Airlines in January, filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy reorganization. As the certified representative for Mesaba Flight Attendants, AFA will use its standing to participate in the bankruptcy process and ensure that the Flight Attendants' rights are protected throughout Pinnacle's restructuring.

Press Release

Spirit

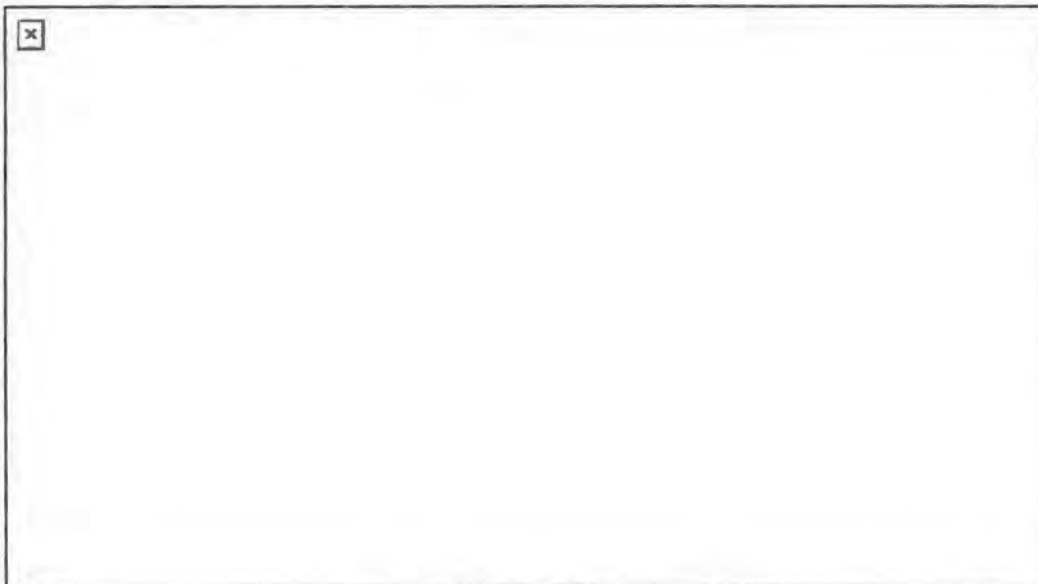

On March 9, Spirit Flight Attendants officially asked the NMB to declare that negotiations are at an impasse and requested a proffer of arbitration, a step required by the Railway Labor Act prior to a 30-day "cooling off" period. This period leads to a strike deadline which often encourages focused negotiations. In October, Spirit Flight Attendants overwhelmingly authorized a strike by 98.4 percent should management fail to negotiate a new contract. With AFA's trademarked strike strategy, CHAOS™ or Create Havoc Around Our System™, a strike can affect the entire system or a single flight. The union decides when, where and how to strike without notice to management or passengers.

Press Release

American Eagle

American Airlines' bankruptcy is affecting the American Eagle Flight Attendants and their negotiations. American Eagle Flight Attendants are outraged that, under the cloak of bankruptcy, management is attacking their contract even though American Eagle is a profitable subsidiary of AMR. Just prior to the AMR bankruptcy filing, American Eagle Flight Attendants were negotiating for a new contract and management had already agreed to significant quality of life improvements. AFA continues to vigorously oppose unnecessary concessions and is working to minimize the impact of Chapter 11 on Flight Attendants.

AFA
EAP/Professional Standards:
An Evolving
Global Network

When a flying partner shows signs of the need for professional assistance, there's a confidential way to help them before safety is jeopardized: AFA Professional Standards, a service of the AFA Employee Assistance Program (EAP). AFA Professional Standards not only assists Flight Attendants in resolving conflicts with co-workers in a confidential manner, but also enables you to refer a coworker who may be unaware of changes in her/his well-being.

Through the AFA EAP global network of over 200 professionally-trained peer support volunteers overseen by mental health professionals, AFA EAP provides resources to Flight Attendants around the world for resolving problems. A group of Continental Micronesia (CMI) Flight Attendants based in Guam recently received EAP training, increasing the ranks of AFA EAP volunteers.

As part of ensuring that their members have full access to EAP services, the new AFA leaders at CMI are coordinating an opportunity for management to learn about AFA EAP as well. AFA EAP Director Heather Healy will introduce CMI management representatives to the history, mission and range of AFA EAP services and will discuss how managers can assist Flight Attendants through AFA EAP. Heather will also be engaged in identifying EAP-related resources that are available in Guam, where the nearly 300 CMI Flight Attendants are based.

In addition to Professional Standards, helping members access appropriate health care around mental health issues, and responding to critical incidents, AFA EAP is constantly evolving to meet the needs of Flight Attendants in a changing industry. AFA EAP has developed the first occupational-specific alcohol screening tool and is currently working to develop the first occupational-specific drug screening tool. To create this screening instrument, input from as many Flight Attendants as possible is needed. Please watch for a survey in early April. It will only take five minutes and your responses are anonymous.

Strongly committed to the health, safety and well-being of AFA members, AFA EAP provides confidential support to Flight Attendants, their family members and partners with any concerns on or off the job. For confidential AFA EAP assistance, call 1-800-424-2406.

Rising to Reclaim Our Country: The 99% Spring

Massive job loss. Home foreclosures. Children in poverty. This is increasingly the face of our country. Join Flight Attendants as part of the 99% standing up to the minority of people responsible for the deepening pain of the American people.

Inspired by Occupy Wall Street and the fight for workers in Madison, Wisconsin, this spring, the 99% will confront the rampant greed and deliberate manipulation of our democracy and our economy by the 1%.

From April 9-15, 100,000 activists will be trained to tell the story of what happened to our economy, learn the history of non-violent direct action, and get the tools to take action for change. Connecting with activists

Be a 'Force Multiplier' in the Fight Against Human Trafficking

Within a global struggle to combat a problem of epidemic proportions, Flight Attendants can play a key role in the fight against human trafficking. In a recent meeting between AFA International President Veda Shook and Department of Homeland Security (DHS) Secretary Janet Napolitano concerning aviation security issues, Secretary Napolitano invited AFA to participate in an initiative to involve aviation employees in the fight against human trafficking. The DHS Customs and Border Protection's "Blue Lightning" initiative provides a voluntary mechanism to identify potential human trafficking victims and to notify federal authorities for front line workers at U.S. commercial airlines that operate U.S.-bound international routes.

"We like to talk about 'boots on the ground'," said Customs and Border Protection (CBP) Acting Commissioner David V. Aguilar. "Flight Attendants and airline employees will be the 'boots in the air' fighting human trafficking." Human trafficking is a modern-day form of slavery. It is defined as:

- the recruitment, harboring, transport, provision or obtaining of a person by force, fraud, or coercion for the purpose of involuntary servitude, peonage, debt bondage, or slavery; or
- Sex trafficking, in which a commercial sex act is induced by force fraud or coercion—or the person induced to perform such acts is under age 18.

It is estimated that at least 12.3 million adults and children are enslaved around the world and that 56 percent are women and girls. The International Labor Organization (ILO) estimated that in 2005, 980,000 to 1,225,000 boys and girls were in forced labor situations as a result of trafficking. In 2000, Congress passed the Victims of Trafficking and Violence Protection Act, which launched a large-scale effort by the U.S. government to fight human trafficking.

In 2010, Secretary Napolitano launched the Blue Campaign – a first-of-its-kind initiative to coordinate and enhance the Department's anti-human trafficking efforts. The components of the Department of Homeland Security combat human trafficking through a variety of programs, and the Blue Campaign coordinates and unites this work.

The 'Blue Lightning Initiative' is coordinated as part of the Blue Campaign by CBP in collaboration with the Department of Transportation. The key to the success of this initiative, however, is the participation of the frontline workers in the airline industry.

As Flight Attendants, we are uniquely positioned to identify human traffickers and assist their victims. Flight crews are skilled observers, and with the appropriate training, they can be the frontline against trafficking, according to CBP. Indicators of human trafficking can include: physical control of travel documents of an adult traveler by a co-traveler; restricting the movement and social interaction of an adult traveler by a co-traveler; an adult traveler who is unclear on details of his/her final destination or point of contact; or a child traveler who appears to be accompanied by someone claiming to be the parent or guardian who is in fact not related to the child. Blue Lightning will roll out a training program in 2012 tailored for Flight Attendants who do U.S.-bound international flying, which will be available through AFA and participating airlines.

In-flight notification gives authorities time to investigate and formulate an appropriate response, which may include coordination with other federal agencies. With the appropriate training, Flight Attendants can become a 'force multiplier' in the fight against trafficking.

Flight Attendant Leaves Legacy to her Profession

Pre-merger Northwest Flight Attendant Diane Seward, who dedicated a 25-year career to flying and serving at times as an AFA elected leader, drew up her will on September 12, 2001, the day after the devastating attacks that forever changed the world. Although not an AFA member at the time, we infer that Diane was compelled by those events to take action in defense of the profession she loved when she named AFA as a beneficiary in her will. Diane passed away on January 26, 2012. We extend our deepest sympathy to Diane's family and friends. While her estate has not yet been settled, we will direct whatever funds are received to fulfill Diane's wishes.

Mr. Boogaard,

Perry Chiaramonte with FoxNews.com. I was referred to you by Mike Levine at our DC bureau. I'm currently writing up a story on the failed bomb plot in Cleveland. Reports have surfaced that the five men involved were involved in the local Occupy Wall Street movement. I want to ask if The Department is on the alert for more possible terroristic threats and attempts from people associated with Occupy. Being that it's such a loosely organized movement, is the raised concern that there might be more rogue protestors looking to incite violence or destruction. Any help would greatly be appreciated.

This is interesting... Just posted

Daily Caller: Homeland Security official tweets socialist applause: 'Happy May Day!'

-Matthew Boyle

May 1

A staffer for President Barack Obama's Department of Homeland Security is praising the left-wing "May Day" protests. On Tuesday evening, Nate Snyder, the special adviser to Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano for "Community Partnership and Strategic Engagement," tweeted "Happy May Day! #solidarity."

Snyder has his his current Homeland Security post since March 2011, according to his LinkedIn page. He was previously the department's Deputy White House Liaison. Before joining the Obama administration, Snyder worked for the Service Employees International Union, and for Obama's 2008 presidential campaign.

May Day is a day on which socialist party faithful and labor unions have traditionally held massive anti-capitalist protests, and on Tuesday some liberal organizers used the occasion to rekindle the Occupy Wall Street movement's flames.

After a winter during which the Occupy movement appeared to have died off, organizers are trying to give it new life this spring by holding protests alongside traditional May Day protests.

This week Occupy organizers have been tied to sending letters containing white powder to executives at News Corporation — the parent company of Fox News and The Wall Street Journal — and Citicorp.

There have also been suspicions — despite vehement denials from movement leaders — that Occupy activists were involved in a failed plot to blow up a bridge in Cleveland, Ohio. FBI agents foiled the alleged plot by inserting an informant into the gang, and arrested five suspects on Tuesday.

White House spokesman Eric Schultz did not immediately respond when The Daily Caller asked him if the administration shares Snyder's support for May Day, nor did two different DHS spokespersons.

Although he is a government official, Snyder qualified his comment — along with all his tweets — by posting at the top of his Twitter account: "Opinions expressed are my own."

Congress requires DHS' National Operations Center (NOC) "to provide situational awareness and establish a common operating picture for the entire federal government and for state, local, and tribal governments as appropriate, in the event of a natural disaster or terrorist attack and ensure that critical terrorism and disaster-related information reaches government decision-makers." Under this requirement, the NOC monitors social media only for situational awareness purposes during times of crisis, such as a terrorist attack or earthquake.

Occupy Wall Street activists are up in arms over a new report describing Homeland Security officials monitoring Occupy demonstrations, but a closer look reveals much ado about nothing.

The government paranoia machine took off last night after Rolling Stone contributor Michael Hastings published an exclusive on e-mails obtained from the global intelligence firm Stratfor via WikiLeaks. In his ominous appraisal of a Department of Homeland Security document, he notes that DHS officials read "OWS-related Twitter feeds" and other "publicly available sources" to keep tabs on the movement. "The government has a long and disturbing history of justifying the curtailing of civil liberties under the cover of perceived, and often manufactured, threats," he wrote. The article passed quickly through the Occupy information bloodstream.

"The DHS document appears to be more concerned with protecting the mechanisms of the financial sector than in ensuring the safety of citizens who are exercising their First Amendment rights," wrote Allison Kilkenny in Truthout. "The suppression of Occupy is nothing less than an attack on those who would try to exercise their civil liberties, their rights and seek to energize democracy," wrote Fire Dog Lake's Kevin Gosztola. The article was re-blogged across scores of Occupy tumblers including Anticapitalist, Occupy All Streets and #Occupy Wall Street.

On Current TV last night, host Cenk Uygur blasted the agency for focusing exclusively on Occupy Wall Street. "The Tea Party... that happens to be pro-corporate America is not anywhere to be found here [but] when Occupy Wall Street is not pro-corporate America, all of a sudden, they need to be investigated by the Department of Homeland Security." Of course, the Tea Party has also been observed by DHS but that's beside the point.

Is DHS really curtailing the rights of Occupiers? Outside of reading newspapers and Twitter about Occupy events, the report is merely a summary of the movement and an assessment of what dangers it may pose. As one line reads:

"Mass gatherings associated with public protest movements can have disruptive effects on transportation, commercial, and government services, especially when staged in major metropolitan areas. Large scale demonstrations also carry the potential for violence, presenting a significant challenge for law enforcement."

The report even acknowledges the peaceful nature of the movement. According to Hastings "The most ominous aspect of the report, however, comes in its final paragraph." He pastes this passage from the report:

The growing support for the OWS movement has expanded the protests' impact and increased the potential for violence. While the peaceful nature of the protests has served so far to mitigate their impact, larger numbers and support from groups such as Anonymous substantially increase the risk for potential incidents and enhance the potential security risk to critical infrastructure (CI). The continued expansion of these protests also places an increasingly heavy burden on law enforcement and movement organizers to control protesters. As the primary target of the demonstrations, financial services stands the sector most impacted by the OWS protests. Due to the location of the protests in major metropolitan areas, heightened and continuous situational awareness for security personnel across all CI sectors is encouraged.

Perhaps Homeland Security's fear of the movement is exaggerated but this summary merely reads like a worst-case-scenario research document compiled from publicly available sources. Could Occupy protesters pose a risk to "critical infrastructure"? Sure. So could scores of Justin Bieber fans. In any event, it's not a breach of civil liberties to draw up such a document. Mostly, it shows how boring it must be to work at DHS, scheming up scenarios that are probably never going to happen.

I just received this link from a colleague at I&A. Apparently NPPD drafted a report on OWS that has now been leaked on wikileaks. The link is to the article not to wikileaks. Also, I have attached the 5-page report to which RS refers.

Obviously, this did not come before PRIV for review as it is a NPPD product. I&A is not very happy (me too) after all that we did to make sure I&A and the fusion centers didn't create any reports like this.

Here is where we are. Are we comfortable with this description? Is this accurate?

At this point, I don't believe it is to our benefit to re-engage with Rolling Stone. We would use this statement for any requests that follow.

Congress requires DHS' National Operations Center (NOC) "to provide situational awareness and establish a common operating picture for the entire federal government and for state, local, and tribal governments as appropriate, in the event of a natural disaster or terrorist attack and ensure that critical terrorism and disaster-related information reaches government decision-makers." Under this requirement, the NOC monitors social media only for situational awareness purposes during times of crisis, such as a terrorist attack or earthquake.

Not sure I would classify Daily Kos as traditional media. Can we stick with news articles? I don't want to get hung up on semantics.

Just talked to our chief privacy officer. At the very least they violated the situational awareness pii because these individuals did not have the authority to be looking at social media and drawing conclusions based on that analysis. That is why we changed the language to privacy standards.

Background: IP (POD division) compiles an open source report on critical infrastructure which is posted to HSIN. The contract for this service recently changed and the new contractor inappropriately conducted some "analysis" to the open source information (in this case). When it was brought to my attention the report was pulled (other steps have also been taken). However the fed staff undertook a thorough review and every source is traditional media. The report references social media resources but that was found in traditional sources. No monitoring of social media took place.

That said, assuming he isn't going to pull down the blog post, with other similar privacy related issues out there, we need a clear statement that explains that this report was drafted in violation of our privacy standards.
